CONNECTED SECURITY= REAL PEACE OF MIND

SECOND GENERATION AUDIO/ VIDEO INTERCOM SYSTEM

Getting full control over an entrance, whether in a single home, a block of flats or a business is simple and stylish with the next generation of video intercom. A modular system means that it can be tailored to the needs of the environment, with three specific goals in mind: to deliver security, comfort and design.

Security

The system benefits from Hikvision's years of expertise in securing premises all over the world. It gives clear images to allow users to see what's happening on their doorstep from the safety of their lounge - or even remotely. It enables alarm functionality, so users can get alerts if any preset scenario plays out. It also allows message recording and visitor voice mail functions.

Comfort

The system was designed with a focus on user experience. For example, users can answer the call from their doorbell wherever they want through mobile phone. They can also combine this with monitoring the premises through cameras, or even managing their alarms system - all through one HikConnect mobile app. The door stations too - both indoor and outdoor - are intuitive to use, with touch screens and simple menus.

Design

The sleek design has been created to fit into, and complement, modern homes, meeting design standards. There's a wide range of indoor stations to choose from, for example, including Red Dot Design Awarded concepts. The modular nature of the system gives flexibility, but the finished solution fits seamlessly together to look good on the wall.
